The Wizard's Hideaway is magical, with an elevated house and blue roof, it inspires role play. The benches and table inside stimulate social interaction and make children want to stay playing for longer. An inclined climbing wall leads up to the elevated house. The inclination makes it a supported, secure climb and adds good opportunities for adult care givers to support the climb up and into the house. Climbing is fantastic for the child's cross-coordination, which again support important brain functions. The slide benefits motor skills such as cross coordination and spatial awareness. These are both fundamental for building up an understanding of the body in speed, time and space, a competence important for day-to-day life experiences such as crossing the road safely. The Wizard's Hideaway can provide hours of magical play.

Platform Social-Emotional: Important life skills like courage, self-confidence, consideration and turn-taking are built.

Physical: supports cross coordination and leg, arm and hand strength. The hand-holds on top ease entry into platform. Social-Emotional: the inclination makes climbing feel secure, especially for younger children.

Cognitive: suggests a theme and supports dramatic play, which stimulates language and communication skills.

Physical: sliding develops spatial awareness and a sense of balance. Furthermore, the core muscles are trained when sitting upright going down. Social-Emotional: empathy stimulated by turn-taking. Cognitive: young children develop their understanding of space, speed and distances when sliding down quickly.

Social-Emotional: invites interaction between sides and cooperative play.

The overall framework applied for these factors is the Environmental Product Declaration (EPD), which quantifies "environmental information on the life cycle of a product and enable comparisons between products fulfilling the same function" (ISO, 2006). This follows the structure and applies a Life-Cycle Assessment approach to the entire Product stage from raw material through manufacturing (A1-A3))
