The village house evokes the play urge in all children with its curved roof, open desks and nice bench inside. There are no limits to the dramatic play scenarios of the house with room for many hours of continued role play that children will return to again and again. The counter can function as shop window as well as bench. The bench inside will stimulate breaks and can function as table. The windows function as extra decoration to inspire role play. When children do dramatic play they not only use their imagination and empathy, they also play out everyday scenarios that they have a hard time understanding, thus negotiating through their life observations. While doing so, they constantly talk and communicate with their peers, hugely stimulating language and thinking skills.

The overall framework applied for these factors is the Environmental Product Declaration (EPD), which quantifies "environmental information on the life cycle of a product and enable comparisons between products fulfilling the same function" (ISO, 2006). This follows the structure and applies a Life-Cycle Assessment approach to the entire Product stage from raw material through manufacturing (A1-A3))
