Come play and stay! The welcoming Play Shells' rounded shapes and levels invite fun, varied play: Climbing up, crawling below, and sitting down at varied heights, alone or with friends. The playful movement possibilities in a manageable space attract and intrigue young children again and again. The parallel play possibilities, repeating movements and routes of friends, work wonders for socializing skills. Apart from being fun play, climbing over and crawling under trains important motor skills such as cross-coordination, which is fundamental for reading skills. Moving the body over, under, higher and lower, incorporates an understanding of space, shapes and measures that is fundamental for being comfortable with mathematics.

The overall framework applied for these factors is the Environmental Product Declaration (EPD), which quantifies "environmental information on the life cycle of a product and enable comparisons between products fulfilling the same function" (ISO, 2006). This follows the structure and applies a Life-Cycle Assessment approach to the entire Product stage from raw material through manufacturing (A1-A3))
